Montauk Club Greets Him for 29th Time With Birthday Celebration.

Chauncey M. Depew, numerically by the records of Peekskill, hustled over to Brooklyn fast night to be present at the twenty-ninth annual celebration of his birthday by the Montauk Club.

Punctually at 7 o'clock Mr. Depew alighted from a limousine and might have taken the canopied steps two at a time had the notion seized him and had he not been escorting Mrs. Depow. Through the merry, congratulatory bar-rage he passed to the dinner table, there to flaunt a fine indifference of narrow minded dietarians and to practise, with excellent reason, what he preached ages ago about having "an eye for every pretty girl-and be sure to tell your

And at length the diners, joining many others, adjourned to the more spacious library rooms of the club. Mr. Depew popped into a side door and out rose bowered stage, bowing briskly to his enthusiastic audience. Misa Mabel Garrison of the Metropolitan Grand Opera; sang a bit of opera and for encore, "The Last Rose of Summer. And then William H. English, president of the Montauk Club, called upon the losopher, though he did not essay to recite the rest of the long list-Senator and statesmen, orator, counsellor, and so on and on.

For this year's birthday party the guest of honor had chosen to speak on "Lessons for the Future from the Past," extracts from which are printed upor editorial page of this morning's Sur AND NEW YORK HERALD. For an hour the deep, powerful, pleasant voice ranged over an engrossed audience, sking at will all responses and emo tions, from hearty applause to profound, thoughtful silences.

As free as ever from cynicism, pes smiss or other taint were the words of Officer of the Northumber- Daughter of Late Mr. and Mrs. the speaker and as full as ever of hu-mor. Out of a rich store of anecdotes he selected such recent acquisitions as South when, at the end of an hour's adiress, a sceptical native sauntered up and eyed him suspiciously.

"That's correct," Mr. Depew replied. Well, you're either a miracle or damn liar." And after hearing the $6 year old voice of Mr. Depew, as strong now as ever, even members of the Montauk Club, the could hark back to the time when the first birthday dinner was given for Chauncey Depew, were only kept from sharing the latter explanation because of the records of Peekskill.

Petition May Be Heard in June -She Is Here With Mother, Mrs. Le Roy French.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD. NEWPORT, R. I., April 29 .- Mrs. Pauline Le Roy French Wagstaff has filed eighty-six years old, as can be verified a petition here for a decree of divorce from Mr. Samuel J. Wagstaff of New York. The papers were brought here on last Tuesday and held a day before being recorded. It is said the application is based on charges of non-support.

The filing of the petition was not altorether a surprise in Newport, as Mr. and Mrs. Wagstaff have been living spart several months, she with her mother, Mrs. Le Roy French, at the Hotel Commodore in New York and at White Sul-phur Springs, W. Va. She has not lived here much of the time in the last few years, but for purposes of residence calls her mother's boose here her home. She and Mr. Wag "falf were married here in 1908. Mr. Anox Tuck French of Tuxedo

French Geraghty is her sister. Mr. Wagstaff is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wagstaff of Babylon, L. I., and the brother of the Mesars, Alfred J. Jr., and David Wagstaff of New York. He is a member of the Union and the Knickerbocker clubs and the St. Nich-olas Society in Sew York. It is not expected that the petition will come up for a Maring until the session of the court in June.

Another similar petition which probbly will be heard at the same time is has been transferred here by her attorthat of Mrs. Charlotte Hunnewell Sor- neys.
